AN ENIGMATICAL BOYCOTT.

To a new Lady Gotham Association. formed on the west side, is attributed the purpose of boycotting young men who, at social assemblies, constantly invite to the dance one and the same young lady. With this process of boycotting as its intent, the motive underlying the formation of the Association becomes, welcome, and thanks are returned. with the meagre details at hand, something of an enigma.

Is it to be inferred that it is the wrong more risk to-day than ever. young man who invariably asks the same girl to dance? And that she refrains from indicating that he is the wrong one because the right one has gone after another girl, and so, refusing the undesirable partner, she would be left out of the dance dangerous. Be careful, entirely? But, then, since there are enough of the dissatisfied girls to form an Association, why not make a new object for the latter.

Let the girls agree that, instead of boycotting the young men, each one who finds herself bothered by the wrong one shall quietly but firmly decline his attentions. His pique will certainly lead him to another quarter, and though he may not get to the right one the first time trying, a lector's office? repetition of the process, not too soon, will result in another shifting about, and so, gradually, the proper state of affairs may ensue. If this remedy won't work boycotting ce tainly will no!,

Of course, however, the advice may be founded in a wrong proposition. It may Egan has been doing in Chilly be that the young men have all found the right young women, and that the members of the Association are all young women whom no young man has found. In that case the boycott will not only be seemen are inclined to be flirtations and would like a little variety in the waltz Secretaries of State, and is in excellent health. before settling down to a 'promenade

The Mayor and Aldermen hastened forth into the night on hearing of the approaching throng. and the angry crowd, worked up almost to the point of lynching the whole municipal body, found only an empty chamber. So the tax payers merely organized a new mass-meeting, denounced the city fathers as robbers and thieves, and then dispersed.

If the Kansas City Councilmen will consider this little hint as good as a kick, and W get either out of office or out of the deal which led them into trouble, they may save themselves from what wouldn't be even a narrow escape in a future rising of tax payers.

It is hardly probable that this wild after hunting for a seat I saw a piece or part of paper laying on the floor. I picked it up, and putting on my glasses, began to read. The paper was very dirty, but the first item that struck my eyes was the heading. "BARKS IN WANT."

I read on the wonderful work you had done and are still accomplishing. May God help and reward you, I said, as I read on and came to a most unfortunate case.

It was that of the poor but respectable young woman with a young babe.

I am but a poor man, yet I have plenty of necessaries of this life. I thought what a little sacrifice it would be if readers of your paper would make an effort to help the poor.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 7. "BABES IN WANT."

A Delicate Question. Will THE EVENING WORLD be so good as to enlighten me on a matter of very great mo-ment to me. I have two sons, one of whom is lawyer, enjoying an enviable practice in this city.

At the age of nineteen years, while acting

At the age of nineteen years, while acting as a bartender in a European country, he was arrested on a charge of larceny preferred against him by his eccentric and suspicious employer, and unjustly convicted and settenced to a couple of months' imprisonment. Upon his release, he came to this country and entered the Law bepartment of columbs College, from which he was graduated with highest honors. I know whereof I speakwhen I say that, though convicted, he was a innocent of the cruel charge as the calld unborn.

He had been in that country only a short time when he left it. Now, sir, what I want to know is, should any one recognize him is later years and ventilate the scandal, as i might call it, and if my son should have him arrested as a vile and libellous calumniator, would the accuser be able to sustain the charge? would the accuser be able to sustain teacharge?

And in case he should be able to prove it would the courts dishar my son, the supposed offense having been committed before is commenced to practise law?

Not wishing to put these questions to my son or to any member of his profession, I address them to The Evenino World, believing it to be a well-informed paper.

It would be wise to have your son's name changed by act of Legislature and thus guard against the unpleasant consequences of the bringing up of the old charge.—(Eb. Baseball Item.
